Topics for interview

Below are a few topics Denhue and Natalie would be happy to speak about, should you wish to interview us or invite us as a guest blogger:

- Diversity in children’s books
- Only 5% of children’s books in the UK feature a non-white character* and why we strive to change that stat.
- Self publishing
- The importance of reading with children
- How we’re providing a platform which encourages the pursuit of STEM for black children
- Our learning resources and activity sheets
- Why we’re encouraging black parents to embrace Montessori in their home. Even if the typical people practicing it don’t look like them.

*Stat according to the Centre for Literacy in Primary Education (CLPE)

Meet the founders...

Natalie

Natalie Co-founder & Illustrator

Natalie is a tremendously talented illustrator with a particular passion for making sure all children have representation in literature. She’s a product designer by profession, with a career spanning across digital design, coding and marketing. As a mother to a daughter, Natalie is conscious of the lack of black women in the STEM industry and works to encourage black women and girls to develop a passion for STEM.

Denhue

Denhue Co-founder & Author

Denhue is the father of a toddler daughter who began his writing career experimenting with breaking down big ideas for a young audience. By profession, Denhue is an aeronautical engineer which has plenty to do with his natural interest in STEM related topics.
